Site Environmental Awareness Training Scheme

Environmental management systems are now considered on a par with health & safety and quality systems. This course is the first step in meeting your legal and moral obligations.

Course Overview

This course provides an introduction to environmental awareness on construction sites. The course covers a number of topics designed to boost your environmental awareness and help you better manage environmental resources.

It is designed to meet the basic environmental knowledge that the sub-contract supply chain is expected to prove to major clients and contractors. Persons who should attend this course include site managers, supervisors and operatives.

Course Syllabus

The aims and objectives of the course are to:

- Demonstrate a commitment to the environment
- Meet the basic environmental knowledge required by the sub-contract chain as required by major contractors
- Cover the environmental aspect of the new touch screen health, safety and environmental test

You'll understand how each of the following issues affects work on construction sites:

- Best practice techniques and legal compliance
- Environmental impacts and the issues associated with construction activities
- The environment and why it matters
- Environmental management systems
- Waste management
- Pollution prevention and water management
- How to be a good neighbour: statutory nuisance, communication, archaeology and heritage
- Energy and resources
- Being a responsible contractor
